O'Neill gaining in the South.

"The friends of B. F. O'Neill, who recently announced his candidacy for the nomination for the governorship of Idaho, have been surprised at the strength already shown by the man from Wallace," said said C. M. Booth, a Southern Idaho attorney, who was in Spokane, Monday morning, on his way to Weiser from Wallace, where he had been for the last week. "The people of the Gem State want a man in the Governor's chair who has a practical and successful business training," continued Mr. Booth, "and a man who stands upon a sensible and practical platform."

Mr. O'Neill's policies, as already announced, appeal to those who are in favor of economy and conservatism in the administration of the State's affairs.

Water Company Buys Pipe

Oscar Austin returned Tuesday from Spokane, where in company with C. W. Cochran, he purchased the pipe necessary to complete the new water system, now being installed. Mr. Austin has a force of men at work on his well and will install his new Fairbanks-Morse pump this week. This pump is capable of throwing 150 gallons per minute, and will be driven by a five horse power electric motor. Everything is now in readiness to begin work on the system proper, just as soon as the cement and piping arrives. The new reservoir will be started this week and work maintained on it until the arrival of the other material. This reservoir will be of 75,000 gallon capacity and will be located at the east end of Fifth street, near the Reeder residence. A carload of cement is expected in a few days. The management expect, with good weather, to be able to have the plant in operation by June 1st.

How to Lace a Shoe.

How many clicks know how to lace a shoe correctly? The great majority believe that the lacing of a shoe has but little to do with the sale, and yet no duty is more important...

The high shoe is the most difficult to lace, and the most important. To lace a shoe snug and do it quickly is a difficult art...

The low, most difficult of all, is the essential feature of an attractive foot wearing, whether Oxford or high cut. The tie the bow correctly is not difficult...

In fitting ladies with footwear, this problem of a neat lace is half the battle of a sale. The shoe properly laced brings every part of the upper in position...

Real Measure of Value.
Labor, not gold, is the measure of wealth. How much of a day's toil is a loaf of bread? How many hours' work is a shirtwaist? The dollar of perspiring brow and aching fingers and fagged out brain is the real standard of value, and the only one by which the cost of living of one generation of one individual, can be compared with that of another, says Milo Hastings in Chicago Wholesale Grocer.

Gold, chosen for want of a better thing, is but a mechanical contrivance in the exchange of property. It is an incident, not the fundamental fact of prosperity, of poverty, of the cost of living, or the ability of one man to buy with his labor the product of another's toil.

The abundance or scarcity of gold, we are told, has something to do with the price of commodities. When gold is plentiful, and consequently cheap, the prices of everything else, stated in terms of gold, will be high. This sounds logical. The world's annual production of gold is about what it was thirteen years ago, and in that time prices have about doubled. To those who look no further, the relationship is clearly proven.

From 1890 to 1895 the prices of commodities made a very material drop to the point of a low price which made possible the spectacular rise of the last decade, and yet, during this period of declining prices the world's gold output climbed as fast, and on a percentage basis a good deal faster, than during the recent years of ascending values.

If that theory of a commodity is due to its relative scarcity compared with gold, eggs, barley and bananas, the production of which has increased at a greater rate than has the production of gold, should have shown a recent decline in value. Has such been the case? Go and see.

Since 1896 our wheat crop has increased more than 50 per cent, a figure that pretty accurately expresses the increase in the amount, not value, of commodities generally. The increase of the products which gold must buy each year is far more rapid than the increase of the stock of gold with which to buy them.

But suppose gold had become cheaper a Cleveland quarter simply because a half-dollar, and we can readjust the lenses in our shopping eyes, and fill our baskets as of yore.

A political office in a small town in Iowa was vacant. The office paid $250 a year, and there was kept open for it. The democratic candidate, Ezekiel Hicks, was a shrewd old fellow, and his campaign fund was turned over to him. To the astonishment of all, however, he was defeated.

"I can't account for it," said one of the democratic leaders, gloomily.
"With that money we should have won. How did you lay it out, Ezekiel?"
"Well," said Ezekiel, slowly pulling his whiskers, "yer see, that office only pays $250 a year salary, an I didn't see no sense in payin' $500 out to get the office; so I bought me a little truck farm instead."

Go Easy, Boys.

The republican editors throughout the state, supporting the various candidates for governor, are extremely busy these days throwing mud at one another and the candidates supported by the opposition papers. If this is continued to the end of the primary fight in August, all the democrats will have to do will be to gather up the republican editorials, charging the various candidates with every crime from petit larceny to stealing railroads and irrigation ditches, and reprint them, to convince the people that neither Mr. Brady, Mr. O'Neil or Mr. Cragstone is fitted to govern a civilized and progressive people. The republican party flushed by its recent victories, has entirely lost sight of the common enemy, and despite the fact that its majorities have constantly dwindled, its leaders are striving by every means available to discredit republican policies and administrations, past and present. This may in a measure be offset by the opposition when its candidates are announced for the various offices and the campaign gets into full swing but just now the democrats are playing their usual waiting game and if carried out, as begun, there will be nothing to take back and no soreness when the final lineup is made to fight the common enemy. If the republican leaders are wise, they will state their respective cases to the public, without vituperation or personal abuse and abide by the people's verdict, realizing that the party principles and party organization stand above personal ambition and desire. If the republican party has degenerated to the point that any one man can make or mar it, then as an instrument for the furtherance of good government, it has served its purpose, and should be relegated to the background until some future time, when its appreciation of the people's wants and needs is greater than any man or set of men's ambitions.

St. Patrick, honored and revered by all patriotic Irishmen the world over, was not an Irishman, but a Frenchman by birth and an Irishman by adoption. At the age of sixteen Patrick and his sister Lupatia were captured by pirates and sold as slaves into Ireland. He served his master as a shepherd for six years, and finally escaped to his native country in France. He was a second time captured and a second time made his escape. He began his missionary work in 437 and for 30 years led a life of self-sacrifice for the glory of God and salvation of the souls of the Irish race. He was a nephew of Bishop St. Martin, of Tours in France and is supposed to have been born in 387. He died at Saul, the scene of his first triumph, on March 17, about the year 463 in the 78th year of his age.

Press dispatches announce that Nicholas Longworth is to seek the republican nomination for governor of Ohio, and the fact of his being a son-in-law of President Roosevelt, should land him in the coveted chair. May the saints preserve us! If he has no other qualification, it is our sincere hope, as an American citizen, that his democratic opposition, Governor Harmon, succeed himself as Ohio's chief executive.

The weather, birds, flowers and base ball cranks, make a noise these days like spring.

To illustrate the hold of machine politics on New York state one has only to cite the fact that last week "Tiny" Tim Woodruff made a complete clean-up of Governor Hughes and Senator Root with President Taft thrown in. Great is the machine in New York and woe is the political reformer.

Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious springtime. Gentle Annie and we should celebrate the same by a general cleaning up of our back yards, streets, alleys, etc.

Postal Telegraph and Telephone?
At intervals for a great many years past there have been agitation in the favor of the taking over of the telegraph service by the post office department, as in foreign countries. In several foreign countries the telephone service is also governmental and connected with the post office. We are now looking on in this country at a great amalgamation of telegraph and telephone facilities. If the post monopoly thus formed shows an enlightened spirit, the result may be improved and cheapened service for the people, both of telegrams and messages by telephone. Such a monopoly would have to come under public regulation, and it would be especially adapted to the kind of oversight provided in the new federal insurrection bill introduced in congress last month. The evolution of this great unified service of swift intelligence must require a considerable time. But it is not so unlikely that a post office department, developed with such a going business lines may absorb the united telegraph and telephone service. All of this lies in the future, but it is worth looking forward to some times and consider our probable tendencies.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for March.

SENATOR PLATT DIES

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CONQUERS NOTED NEW YORKER.

Body Taken to Oswego, N. Y., His Burial-He Was Not Only a Leader in His Own State, but in National Affairs as Well—Old Age Suffered by Matrimonial Affairs.

New York, March 7.—Thomas Collier Platt, formerly United States senator from New York and for many years a national figure in republican politics, died at 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Abele on West Eleventh street, from whom he had rented three rooms for the last four years. Mr. Abele had been his nurse. The family were all at the bedside.

Platt's death was chronic and acute bright's disease. The body was removed to the home of Frank H. Platt, his son, and later taken to Oswego, N. Y., the senator's birthplace, where it will be buried. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Presbyterian church in Oswego.

Thomas Collier Platt, the "easy lion" of earlier and brighter days, was not only a great force in the republican leader of his state but a figure in national politics shoulder to shoulder with men of such rank and reputation as the late Matthew Stansley Quay of Pennsylvania.

In "Twenty Years in Congress," James O. Blaine described Platt as a "business man of great personal popularity. He was an aptitude for public affairs and in a mass of other affairs in his state. He is no debater, but has strong common sense and quick judgment of men."

Yet owing to his native judgment, wide experience and skill as an organizer, it became the fate of Platt to win prominence more for his association with others than for anything he did of his own initiative.

Twice in his life Platt was the center of the national stage—once when he resigned with Roscoe Conkling from the cabinet of Grover Cleveland and was instantly re-elected to the U. S. senate and once when he induced Theodore Roosevelt to run for vice president with McKinley.

Such marks upon Roosevelt's better judgment as the face of his repeated declarations that nothing could induce him to accept the nomination.

There could not be a better instance of Platt's skill in persuasion and manipulation of the many than that marked his ripost wisdom. McKinley was elected Roosevelt became president and the days of Platt's domination in the state passed into senility.

His bodily strength declined. He made a second marriage, which ended in the courts and he was sued by Mac Wood, formerly a clerk in the government employ. His divorce was the strongest of his matrimonial reverses proved to have taken place.

B. C. HAS SNOW-SLIDE

OVER 93 RAILROADERS DEAD NEAR ROGERS' PASS.

Avalanche 900 Feet Wide Sweeps Everything in Front of It—Stranded Passenger Train Goes Back to Calgary—Few Bodies Recovered—Men Were Working to Clear the Tracks.

Winnipeg, March 6.—Canadian Pacific officials report that 92 met death and that 14 injured were in the hospital as a result of the avalanche at Rogers pass, B. C., Friday night.

Another slide occurred on the banks at the Kicking Horse river near Falkner today. It buried the track for a length of 900 feet to a depth of 23 feet. As soon as this slide is removed a west-bound passenger train, stalled 25 miles east of Rogers pass, will be hauled back to Calgary and the passengers and mails shipped through to the Coast via Medicine Hat and the Crown Nest Pass railway.

Another slide is reported from Three Valley, a small point west of Revelstoke. The slide is 300 feet long and 10 feet deep.

Names of the Known Victims.

- Vancouver, B. C., March 6.—Of the 92 Canadian Pacific trainmen, trackmen and laborers buried by an avalanche in Rogers pass, on the summit of the Selkirk range of the Rocky mountains, all are probably dead. Following is a list of the victims: R. J. Buckley, conductor. W. Phillips, engineer. J. J. Fraser, roadmaster. T. Grillo, steamman. A. P. Potruif, engineer. J. McClelland, bridgeman. A. Johnson, foreman. G. Anderson, foreman. D. J. McDonald, bridgeman. A. Makone, brakeman. G. Nicolls, bridgeman. Twelve of Bridge Foreman McDonald's men, names unknown, and 37 Japanese.

Only Seven Recovered.

This afternoon the bodies of only seven men had been recovered. They were those of Roadmaster Fraser, Fireman Griffith, Conductor Buckley, Engineer Phillips, A. P. Potruif and A. Makone and a Japanese. The work of recovering the dead and of opening the track is being impeded by a blizzard that is blowing through the pass. There was also another big slide of snow and rock this morning a mile east of the spot where the train was overtaken. It destroyed a portion of a snowshed and buried the track for 400 yards to a depth of 60 feet. There were no victims in the last avalanche. Today's mentioned express left here at 3:15 as usual. Until the tracks have been cleared passenger traffic, east and west-bound, will be handled via the Arrow Lakes, Nelson & Crown Nest Pass railway.

Came With Noise Like Thunder.

The accident occurred near a snowshed one mile west of Rogers pass and at the actual summit of the Selkirk range of the Rocky mountains. Engineer W. Phillips of the work train, headed by a rotary snow plow, were killed. The men were a working crew engaged in clearing away a small slide which had come down on it in the evening. The men were spread out over the slide and working a rotary engine over it when a larger slide came down and carried them to their death in the canyon below. As soon as the news reached Revelstoke the firebell was sounded and within half an hour the relief train consisting of physicians and nurses and over 200 railway men and other citizens was speeding out to Rogers pass.

Thirty Bodies Taken Out.

Vancouver, B. C., March 7.—Thirty bodies have been found in the wreckage at Rogers Pass, where the avalanche buried 92 workmen engaged in clearing the Canadian Pacific tracks of wreckage brought down by an earlier slide. Twenty-two of the bodies recovered are those of white men, the other being the bodies of Japanese section men. The local offices of the Canadian Pacific adhere to their estimate of 62 dead. They say they have carefully checked the list and that the number given is correct.

Five hundred men are at work clearing away the wreckage, and the railway company expects to have the line open for traffic by tomorrow night. It is expected most of the bodies will have been recovered by that time.

The danger of other slides is imminent. Rain and sleet have been falling for the last two days and tonight a fearful snowstorm is raging. The wind blows through the pass with terrific force and the rescuers are greatly hampered in their work.
